DENVER -- Volunteers from the Carolina Waterfowl Rescue drove to Denver to the site of the large Friday to bring home birds. Seventeen ducks and 3 chickens are now safely at the rescue receiving most likely the first bath in a long time.

Since these animals must be held until released by a judge, CWR is asking for some help in order to accommodate them at their facility, which is now at capacity.

Items needed include 4 chain link dog kennels that can be made into permanent pens for the ducks, ha and rubber restaurant mats for flooring. People interesting in donating can also purchase feed for the b Feed Supply in Matthews where the rescue group has an account. Monetary donations to cover the co birds are also greatly appreciated.
